Writing a Belgian-style CV

1. Make sure you write the CV in the correct language. Belgium has 3 official languages. Check job advertisement.
2. Check for grammatical and spelling errors with a native speaker.
3. Belgian employers pay a lot of attention to experience, motivation and social skills.
4. The usual style to write your experience is reverse chronological order, that is, the most recent first.
5. Belgian CVs tend to be relatively detailed. Recent trends - one or two sides of A4 for major companies.
6. Keep it factual, accurate and professional looking, and use good quality paper – or a letterhead – if printed.
7. There is no obligation to provide a photograph. If you do, choose a professional-looking headshot with an appropriate background.

Arrange your CV in the following order

- Personal details
- Work experience
- Education
- Language
- Personal information
- Reference

WORK EXPERIENCE

2016 - now Smart/Agile Cities Researcher
University College Artevelde, Ghent, Belgium

- I work as researcher and lecturer for the University College Artevelde, at the department of Geomatics and Digital Media.
- As lecturer of the Operating Systems course, I am responsible for updating the course, giving lectures, assisting the students, and for their follow-up.
- As lecturer, I also support the groups Web & New Media in the creation of new courses, updating the curriculum, operating systems, internet of things, blockchain, computer science & software engineering, web technologies.
- As researcher, I work in the broad concept of Agile/Smart Cities/Communities. In this concept, I focus on (participatory) participatory education, participatory business, participatory governance, ... for example (local) participatory democracy supported by blockchain, new media co-creation for city marketing, educational inclusion, social entrepreneurship, and digital entrepreneurship, agile education, gifted education, gamification, future classrooms. I collaborate with colleagues to work together on internal applied-research projects, and I support colleagues in their current applied-research projects.

Highlights:

- I supported the city of Ghent in the creation of the digital tool De Starterslaboek.
- I co-wrote 2 PWO projects in the call of January 2017. 1 of these projects got approval: Future Classroom. And since March 2017 I work for the PWO project Gamification in the classroom, a 2 years research project.
- I got Arnhemtohogeschool into 2 Horizon 2020 consortiums that applied for funds in February 2017. I lead and co-wrote, together with the city of Ghent, a project proposal for KIBI Digital Skills Fund in June 2017.
- In the month of June/July 2017 I followed a pioneers training and became Agile Learning Facilitator. An educational innovation that I brought to Arnhemtohogeschool. In August 2017, I co-facilitated the Best European AL3 training and taught others about Agile Learning Facilitator.
- I co-wrote an EU COST-network project proposal submitted in September 2017.
- I am leading the co-writing of an Erasmus+ project where I have already got all the partners.
- I have EU grant partners willing to work together with me in 2 PWOs co-financing.
- I am constantly asked by researchers in Arnhemtohogeschool for new research projects.

Business or sector: Research, education, ICT, media, consulting, business development, project management

2010 - now IT specialist and social media strategist
Dobressa Computer, Oudenaarde, Belgium

- I work as a self-employed ICT professional (see www.DobressaComputer.be), offering a variety of informatics and communication services, ranging from computer maintenance and installation to the creation of promotional material, logo, strategy, websites and on-line shops, branding and communication projects based on the combination of on-line and offline marketing. First in Mellebeke, Selslandend, and afterwards in Oudenaarde, Belgium. I have done several projects as a freelancer for important clients, including Exics, Cacao, Brussels Airport, CineStar-Lugans, Stad Oudenaarde, Stad Gent.
- A few of my projects:
  - Business/functional analysis/UX for the City of Ghent: Gent en Gerde website, OCMW-Gent in use Incent, InghMigent, e-payment system.

Writing a Belgian-style motivation letter

1. Check the job advertisement. Is the motivation letter needed? Make sure to write it in the correct language. Belgium has 3 official languages. Make sure you choose the correct language.
2. If you're applying for a job in the French region you may be asked to write your cover letter by hand, otherwise typically it should be typed. If it's the Flemish part of the country, then always type it.
3. Check for grammatical and spelling errors with a native speaker.
4. Don't go into too much detail – that's what your CV is for.
5. Keep it short. Less. Is. More. Three paragraphs, tops. Half a page, tops. Skip lengthy exposition and jump right into something juicy. Close strong, set out why you are the most suitable person for the job.
6. Address the right person, or nobody. "Dear Hiring Manager" or "To Whom It May Concern".

My name (first name and last name) date

My street address
Postcode and city

(Ms) (Mr) contact person
Company name
Street address
Postcode and city

Your job opening for ... (here I specify the job I am applying for) or: Unsolicited application for... (2 blank lines)

Dear Ms/Dear Mr ... (here I fill in the last name of the person to whom I am writing) (1 blank line)

1. Introduction: the reason I am writing you:
- Where did I find the job offer?
- For which job am I applying? (1 blank line)

2. Middle: I write why I feel that I am the right candidate for the job – briefly and to the point.
- Why am I applying for the job?
- A few of my qualities and skills that closely match the job description.
(tip: you can use your CV for inspiration) (1 blank line)

3. Conclusion:
- I would like to close by requesting an interview so that I might personally introduce myself. (1 blank line)

The close (example: Yours faithfully) (about 5 blank lines)

(Signature)

My name (first name and last name) (2 blank lines)
